

‘Wish Upon a Star’

Camp Internet

January Family Astronomy Night

Come join us ‘round an electronic campfire for this fun family learning event!

Families are invited to join us for an online Astronomy Night with outdoor star watching challenges. Join us from a school, home, or public library computer as we learn about Native American star lore, pre-historic and historic celestial observatories around the world, and use online star charts to help us identify stars visible in the night sky. Participants will move from the online resources to the out of doors to star and constellation observations, and then come back to the keyboard to tell us what they have discovered in their own night sky.

Classes will select a star in advance to research – and can request a remote robotic telescope photograph of their star to show parents this amazing use of the Internet to deliver a star’s image from a distant telescope right to a desk top computer!

January 31st 5-8pm

Online at www.campinternet.net

Students from Camp Internet classrooms will have passwords for access. Other friends of Camp Internet can request a one-night password by emailing explore@campinternet.net.

Classes – please send us your star requests (name, and position if known) by January 18th
